Bulldogs arrive in Southwest Asia

(Above) A 354th Fighter Squadron A-10 prepares to land at Ahmed Al Jaber Air Base, Kuwait, Saturday. As the close-air-support/ combat search-and-rescue capabilities in Aerospace Expeditionary Force 6, the Bulldogs have deployed to join the 332nd Air Expeditionary Group in support of Operation Southern Watch. (Left) Lt. Col. Jim Saffold, 354th Fighter Squadron commander and A-10 pilot, talks with Airman First Class John Misenhimer, an A-10 crew chief, upon arrival to the AOR. More than 500 hundred airmen assigned to the 355th Wing are deployed to locations in Southwest Asia and other areas in support of Operation Southern Watch. For this Aerospace-Expeditionary-Force deployment, D-M members will provide combat support personnel and A-10 aircraft at bases in SWA to support "No-Fly" zone enforcement taskings over Southern Iraq. Those aligned to the AEFs know in advance when they may be tasked to deploy for a three-month rotation, so they can enjoy better stability and predictability in their professional and personal lives. AEF 5 and 6 will re-enter its "on-call" window again from September through November 2002.

355th Services, family members come together to save a life

By Angie Erickson

May 11 could have been his last day alive.

Phil Adam, Blanchard Golf Course golf cart mechanic had planned a two-day fishing trip with a couple of his family members. This was not unusual since he enjoyed fishing. So he headed to Outdoor Recreation to rent a boat for the trip. This, too, was not unusual. What was, is that he became very dizzy and that was the last thing that he would remember before he would awaken in the hospital.

The retired master sergeant who had spent 26 years in the Air Force, retired at Davis-Monthan with the 333rd Fighter Squadron Lancers as an A-10 debriefer, had a life-changing experience, and fortunately, he had a facility of people who were ready, willing and able to assist his son-in-law, Brian Andrews, in saving his life.

"Brian went inside Outdoor Rec and told someone to call 911 because his father-in-law was having a heart attack," said Joe Morgan, an Outdoor Rec employee. "Immediately Carrie Jones, an Information, Tickets & Tours employee, called 911 and I ran outside to assist."

Morgan found the worst scenario in the rental equipment yard. Andrews was lying on the ground with no pulse.

"He was dead," said Morgan, a former medic. "So his son-in-law and I began CPR."

Morgan provided the compressions and Andrew, who was a former Navy medic, gave mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Morgan said he was very shaky since he had not administered CPR in more than 10 years. However, he did not let that stop him from taking action.

"We would revive him, but then we would lose him," said Morgan. "Although he would spontaneously breath, we lost him three times. He was cyanotic (blue) and I did not know if he was going to make it."

"I thought about my wife and mother-in-law during CPR. I thought about how I would have to be the one to deliver the bad news if Phil did not pull through," said Andrews. "I was afraid to leave his side."

After providing compressions for nearly 15 minutes in the Arizona heat, Morgan had become exhausted. He was relieved for a short break by Staff Sgt. Randy Castle, 355th Services Squadron. In the meantime Jones remained the lifeline to the emergency crew, who were on the way. Richard Valenzuela and Dan Thelen, both from 355th SVS, went out to the streets to look for and help direct the emergency crew into the rental equipment yard.

"It seemed like days before the

UPAR responsibilities

UPARs are responsible for being the "eyes and ears" of the public affairs office. Each and every squadron on base has unique individuals in it that have an interesting story to tell, whether it is about sports, awards, lifesaving acts, IDEA program contributions, etc.

Each of your squadrons are also making improvements to the methods or process that they use or to squadron facilities or community areas via self help projects. UPARs are responsible for getting the information to the public affairs staff in a usable format and in a timely manner.

Not every idea is going to get picked up. The staff focuses on issues that effect the base populace in general, but it never hurts to present ideas to your squadron UPARs so that they can judge the input for newsworthiness or unique human interest appeal and forward it to the staff.

The following are some of the areas we hope to utilize UPARs to tell your squadron's story (based on skills):

- ◆ Provide news ideas as well as write and shoot photos of squadron activities for submission to the base newspaper
- ◆ Review and solicit Hometown News Release submissions
- ◆ Review their squadron's submissions to the base TV Channel (75)
- ◆ Seek volunteers for tours and speaking engagements

Right Start

Concern: While attending a recent Right Start program, the medical personnel informed us that we should avoid "some" restaurants downtown due to the fact that they use hemp-seed oil in their cooking. Several of us asked which restaurants to avoid but they didn't know. I called OSI to see if they have any of these establishments on a "off limits" list but they don't have one of those either. My main problem is if there is a danger of testing positive on a drug test we should have the information to avoid these business.

Response: Thank you for recognizing and bringing to our attention the confusion on this issue. The use of "Hemp Seed Oil" in our off-base community is a concern and the facts should be made clear to the Davis-Monthan AFB community. Here are the facts: The rumor that there are restaurants downtown using "hemp seed oil" is just that ... a RUMOR. A representative from the Arizona Restaurant Association has been contacted and denies knowledge of any local restaurant using hemp seed oil or being supplied with hemp-seed oil. There are some health food products that possibly contain hemp-seed oil. It is encouraged to read the listing of ingredients before purchasing these products. Most importantly, individuals need to take responsibility for asking the question if in doubt. I hope this clears up the confusion on this issue. We will make sure that the information is presented clearly at future Right Start Programs.

Stolen laundry

Concern: Recently, my husband did our laundry on base, and accidentally left all my work uniform pants, shorts and swimming shorts hanging on the rack. When he had realized he had forgotten them, he went back right away, only to find that they were gone. I thought all people in the military had integrity and respect for other people's property. Being that this is our first duty station and new to the military, we are not financially stable enough to replace what had been taken. I tried to be optimistic about the whole situation and had contacted the laundromat's manager, hoping that someone with a good conscience would turn it in. I am not asking for anything other than to be heard, so that this does not happen to someone else. And to whoever took my clothes, I hope you enjoy them. Think of it as a gift.

Response: I am terribly sorry to hear that your clothes were stolen at the Laundromat, but can assure you that the careless actions of one individual should not reflect negatively on the overwhelming majority of good people that make up Team D-M. I'll use this forum to ask all our readers for assistance; if you've mistakenly taken clothes by accident (or even if deliberately), please return them ASAP to the AAFES manager, so we may get them back to their rightful owner, with no questions asked. There may actually be a lesson in this loss incident for all of us; whether at the base Laundromat or in housing, we must secure our personal belongings or we may risk losing them to the occasional less-than-honorable person.

paramedics responded," said Andrews as they continued the CPR. While it took nearly 30 minutes, help did arrive. Adam received electrical shock twice to get his heart going and then he was taken to St. Josephs Hospital where he underwent a double bypass surgery.

"I was dead," said Adam. "But I don't remember what happened."

However, he understands that he would not be alive today if it were not for the handful of people who pulled together in an effort to save his life. That's why he paid a visit a week later to Outdoor Rec to say thanks.

"I felt really good," said Morgan. "Because I knew when I saw him, that he was truly alright."

Everyone involved agrees that knowing CPR was the key to survival in this case. "If you don't have a CPR card, you should go and exam one," said Morgan who credits his wife Charmine Love of 12th Air Force. "My wife is a CPR instructor who keeps me current."

"I hope this can be a lesson for people," said Andrews. "My father-in-law is 52 years old and active. This can happen to anyone. If you have any doubts about your health, you should go and get a checkup."

Mandatory PKI training and certificate issue for all members

Public Key Infrastructure implementation is a two part process.

1. Training is being held at the Base Theater June 18 to 22 at 8 and 10 a.m. and June 25 to 26 at 8 a.m., 9 a.m., 10 a.m. and 1 p.m.

2. In addition to training you must also be issued a PKI certificate. Your units will provide you with an appointment time for this issue.

PKI is designed to digitally sign and encrypt e-mail, allowing less chance for breach of security.

Youth reacts fast during emergency, helps mother get help

By Angie Erickson
355th Wing Public Affairs

"He's my little hero," said Laurie Cains, about her 11-year-old son, John. "He called 911 and got help for me."

Cains, wife of Army Sgt. 1st Class Ron Cains of the Tucson Army Recruiting Company, had been feeling poorly May 26. She thought that by resting for most of the day that she would feel better. However when she got up, she felt unsteady, and then before she knew it, she had fallen and hit her head on the coffee table.

Fortunately, her son witnessed the incident and quickly reacted. First he went to her side and shouted "Mommy, Mommy!" and awoke her before calling 911.

"He told the 911 line operator

Angie Erickson

Laurie and John Cains

what had happened and when the paramedics arrived he told them too," said Cains.

She said that his scouting and DARE program experience really paid off. "I paid close attention in school," said John. "But I was scared, and felt better when help arrived."

"You just never know when something like this is going to happen," said Cains who found that she suffered an ailment due to lack of potassium. "I was just glad that he was here to assist me."

Although John is a bashful boy, that did not stop him from taking action.

"You never know when you will need to respond," said Cains. "Everyone, whether an adult or a child, should be trained on how to react to emergency situations."

'Bats' take Language Olympics honors

Four linguist teams from the 43rd Electronic Combat Squadron competed in the Defense Language Institute's Language Olympics May 14 to 18, returning with a trophy for the best overall Russian language team.

The squadron sent two Russian language teams, one Korean language team and one Chinese language team to the event, held at the Presidio of Monterey, Calif.

Competing against 41 other teams, Team RU40, consisting of Senior Airman Brian Hudson and Tech. Sgt. Bob Babick, won the gold medal in the Russian Scrabble competition, and the silver medal in the triathlon.

The triathlon is a three-part event in which competitors complete language-related tasks in an outdoor course. As a result of their victory, "Team Compass Call," a multiple team that also included members of the 41st Electronic

Combat Squadron, brought home the trophy for top overall Russian-Language Multiple Team. The 43rd ECS's second Russian language team, RU41, included Tech. Sgts. Jeff Bagwell and Mike Williams. Staff Sgts. Jared Tuckett and Bryan Travis formed the Chinese language team; Staff Sgt. Matthew James and Senior Airman Dan Collington competed in Korean. ## Flying squadrons compete at Turkey Shoot

The 355th Wing held a semi-annual Turkey Shoot competitions among the flying squadrons June 4 to 6.

During the Turkey Shoot, the squadrons are evaluated in many facets involving both the maintenance and operations side of the mission.

The compass call squadrons, 41st and 43rd Electronic Combat Squadrons, compete against each other in a "live-Jam" exercise.

The compass call teams were led by Tech. Sgt. Kevin Pearl, who set up a communications network of "targets" for the mission crews to jam near Fort Huachuca, Ariz.

The maintainers were evaluated on pre-flight, sortie regeneration and mission system performance. The flight crews were evaluated on mission planning and completion. The mission crews were evaluated on mission effectiveness. The A-10 squadrons participated in several live fire exercises at the Barry M. Goldwater Range. The events included bombing and strafing. Maintenance was also a large part of the competition. Approximately 30 sorties were flown during this competition, from High Altitude Dive Bomb to Low Angle Strafing. The competition was extremely close and choosing a winner was tough. ## Air Force mental health clinics get new name

Lt. Gen. (Dr.) Paul Carlton Jr., Air Force Surgeon General, signed a memorandum May 22 changing the name of Air Force Mental Health clinics to Life Skills Support Centers.

The renaming takes effect immediately.

"Renaming mental health clinics is an important first step in helping to reduce the stigma associated with mental health services," said Lt. Col. Wayne Talcott, who is the Air Force's suicide prevention program manager at the Air Force Medical Operations Agency. "Receiving 'mental health' services has been seen as career damaging by many airmen," Talcott said. "This perception exists despite the fact that 97 percent of airman who voluntarily seek help suffer no duty limitations."

Many clinics offer a variety of services aimed at helping people better cope with the stresses of daily life, Talcott said. Stress management and conflict resolution classes are just two examples of the many services offered at some Life Skill Support Centers. (Courtesy Office of the Surgeon General Public Affairs)

CCAF increases affiliated schools

By Lynis Cox

Air University Public Affairs

The Community College of the Air Force turns 29 this year, and as the world's largest community college, CCAF is fulfilling its mission to develop the academic potential of Air Force enlisted members.

"We are definitely not 29 and holding," said Dr. Elane Seebo, dean of academic affairs. "The Community College of the Air Force is committed to growth, to meeting the educational needs of the enlisted force."

Policy Council members recently voted to recommend an increase in the number of affiliated member schools from 122 to 135. Increasing the number of affiliated schools means students can receive credit for more courses applicable to CCAF degrees.

Recently, CCAF brought base education services offices online with a system that allows career advisers access to servicemembers' educational records.

The system has reported more than 50,000 hits since it became fully operational Jan. 31.

Future plans include expanding the system so students can use the Internet to check their progress toward earning a degree.

The college plays a vital role in fulfilling the Air Force's education commitment to its military people, according to Col. Jim McBride, CCAF commander and president.

"We have awarded more than 209,000 associate degrees since we opened in 1972, and we are looking at ways every day to give enlisted personnel more opportunity to achieve associate degrees early in their careers," he said.

"Education builds a strong foundation for the future of our Air Force's aerospace mission.

"The rapid change in communications and warfighting technology has accelerated demand for critical thinking, teamwork and commitment on the part of Air Force personnel," McBride said.

"CCAF provides airmen with the means to meet these demands and achieve their personal goals."

The college's accomplishments in job-related education give airmen an opportunity they might not otherwise have because of the demands of military life.

The degrees are directly related to Air Force Specialty Codes and are designed to sharpen the technical, leadership and management capabilities of the enlisted corps.

Areas being explored through CCAF include offering enlisted Air Force members an opportunity to earn additional academic degrees or professional credentials, such as certificates or licenses in specific fields.

Most recently, CCAF has been granted authority by the Federal Aviation Administration to verify that Air Force individuals meet all requirements and to issue the certificate of eligibility to take the exam for an airframe and power plant certificate.

The college is also exploring options to expand opportunities for obtaining a wider variety of associate and bachelor's degrees, including coalitions of educational partners and a variety of distance learning opportunities.

Attitude = success or failure

By Chief Master Sgt. John Foran

355th Wing Command Chief Master Sergeant

In my 24 years of active-duty service I have seen many people who did not know they were in charge of their own destiny. I am totally convinced that life is about 10 percent what happens to me and 90 percent how I react to it.

I really like that old saying, "If you're not having fun, you aren't doing something right."

My positive attitude is my personal key to success, and I want to share some thoughts about how our attitudes determines our approach to life, your relationships with people, and finally how your attitude can often be the only difference between success and failure.

In a squadron where I was previously assigned, I was told that I would be supervising a new airman.

The former supervisor told me the airman had, on numerous occasions, showed "bad" attitude, hated being in the Air Force and just wanted out.

On my first encounter with this very young airman, I discovered quickly his very large frown and his rather large "I don't want to be here attitude." I realized then this airman didn't know the key — to have fun!

So I gave him an order — that in this shop everyone was required to smile. He looked at me and promptly said, "You can't make me smile."

I then told him "Oh, you are mistaken. I can give you a lawful order to smile, but I can't make you happy."

From that day forward, when I saw this airman, he would paste a smile on his face.

As time passed, I began to notice a change in his approach to life.

To my amazement, he began to interact with his co-workers and began to spontaneously smile.

His negative attitude was not only fading

Senior Airman Latonia Brown

ing — it had disappeared.

He had now begun to realize that life was not as bad as he had originally thought ... that it was true his life is not so much what happens to him, but how he reacts to it.

After this attitude change, this young airman was so positive, he began changing the attitudes of others. He began to think of his future as something to look forward to rather than something to dread.

He came to me many times for feedback and career advice.

He decided to take an overseas assignment and later reenlisted.

At his going-away celebration he thanked me for taking time with him, and told me he very much felt a part of our unit, not an outcast.

I told him he was the one who accomplished these things by opening his mind to new and positive ideas.

I told him as long as he kept this attitude he would have continued success.

This is one example of how small changes in your life can shape your whole future.

I think Lou Holtz, the famous Notre Dame coach, said it best when he said, "Ability is what you're capable of doing, motivation determines what you do, and attitude determines how well you do it."

I challenge you to use your positive attitude as leaders in the United States Air Force to make a positive difference as we face the challenges the 21st Century has to offer the greatest Air Force the world has ever known.

$10,000 in scholarship money available to club members

By Steve Jacobs

355th Services Squadron

It's time once again for the Club Scholarship Program.

The program, entering its fifth year, is sponsored by Air Force Services.

"This is not only a way to generate money for education, it's also a prime example of the many benefits arising from club membership," said Lt. Col. Mike Archuleta, commander of D-M's 355th Services Squadron.

He went on, "The program is open to members of any Air Force officers' club or enlisted club, as well as their spouses, children, step-children and grandchildren."

"This year, three members of Air Force clubs, or someone in their families, will have $5,000, $3,000 or $2,000 more for their education."

Annual scholarships are made possible by a grant from First USA Bank, the servicing agency for all U.S. Air Force club membership accounts.

Program eligibility is limited to students who are now enrolled in, or accepted to, an accredited college or university for the upcoming semester.

They may be full-time or part-time, undergraduate or graduate.

Packages consist of three parts: personal information about the sponsor and applicant, a summary of the nominee's goals, awards and accomplishments, and a short essay on Air Force Clubs — the value and rewards of membership. Please do not include transcripts, certificates, letters of recommendation or other documents.

Each participating Air Force installation may submit no more than two nomination

packages for consideration by a panel of Air Force judges.

Ten packages were turned in by members of D-M clubs for the 2000 program.

"Don't pass up this opportunity," said Ron Eggers, manager of D-M's Desert Oasis Club. "Your chances of winning may be better than you think. Last year, there were 90 submissions Air Force-wide, and one of our members, Tech. Sgt. Clyde Kebodeaux, took home the top prize of $5,000. This year, it could be you!" Winners' names will be announced in October.

Nomination packages are due by 3 p.m., July 13, to the 355th Services Squadron marketing office, in Building 3510, Room 220).

Complete application instructions can be picked up at the officers' or enlisted club, or call the services marketing office at 8-5950.

A unique Father's Day message

By Senior Master Sgt.

Mark Van Huss

355th Mission Support Squadron

I have a rather unique Father's Day message for those fathers out there. I have a 16-year-old autistic son. No, he is not like the character Dustin Hoffman played in the movie "Rainman." He is non-verbal and requires special education.

Recently, there has been a substantial increase in the number of diagnosis of autism. For those of you that don't know what autism is, it is a complex developmental disability that typically appears during the first three years of life and lasts the entire lifetime of the affected child.

The result of a neurological disorder that affects the functioning of the brain, autism and its associated behaviors have been estimated to occur in as many as one in 500 individuals, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Autism is four times more prevalent in boys than girls and knows no racial, ethnic, or social boundaries. Family income, lifestyle, and educational levels do not affect the chance of autism's occurrence.

Autism impacts the normal development of the brain in the areas of social interaction and communication skills. Children and adults with autism typically have difficulties in verbal and non-verbal communication (like my son), social interactions, and leisure or play activities.

The disorder makes it hard for them to communicate with others and relate to the outside world. In some cases, aggressive and/or self-injurious behavior may be present. Persons with autism may exhibit repeated body movements (hand flapping, rocking), unusual responses to people or attachments to objects and resistance to changes in routines. Many autistic children look completely normal and physically show no signs of any abnormalities.

My wife and I get so angry when we hear other parents say they "do not have much time for their children." If they only knew how lucky they really are. After all, how long does it take to tell your children that you love them?

Although my wife and I love our son dearly, we often wonder what his life would have been had he not been autistic. We are still hopeful for his future, however, our hopes and dreams for him to have a better life than ours vanished the day we learned he was autistic while stationed at Kadena AB, Japan some 14 years ago.

Our frustrations and tribulations have been many and at times, extremely stressful, but we are still doing the best we can. One thing I do know is that I would give up everything I have, including my Air Force career, for him to say three words to either my wife or me — "I love you."

So this Father's Day, instead of waiting for your children to say how much they love you, tell them how much you love them. You won't regret it.

Health Focus

Are you running the right way?

By 1st Lt. Jeffery Lopez
355th Medical Group

Do you know what to look for when buying a running shoe?

Can you look past all the glitz and glamour, the multitude of brands, colors, and styles present in the large selections available at most shoe stores?

This task seems easy to some individuals and certainly harmless.

The truth is that your decision should consider many factors and follow established guidelines.

Your choice of shoes, if wrong, can lead to numerous sports related injuries from foot to low back pain.

Experience at past running shoe clinics show the majority of individuals have either no idea what to look for in a running shoe or have limited knowledge to make the selection.

The running shoe clinic is designed to give individuals insight into which running shoe is most appropriate for their specific foot type.

Physical therapists, trained in observing the structure and movements of your feet while you stand and walk, will be on site.

These professionals will inform you of your specific foot type and give recommendations for selecting your running shoes.

The process is free and takes only a few minutes from start to finish but can save you from a lifetime of injuries.

The running shoe clinic has been offered to various squadrons across the base with great success.

We would now like to offer this opportunity to all members of the wing and their dependents.

The running shoe clinic will be open June 22, from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Fitness Center.

Please take advantage of a golden opportunity to learn about your feet and how to buy your next pair of running shoes.

Commander touts Reserve component role

355th Wing Public Affairs

"We just want a seat at the table," said Col. Robert Swain Jr., who visited Snowbird Operations during his annual training in May. "Because we bring a wealth of experience and knowledge to that table."

As the vice commander of the largest joint reserve base in the world, the 926th Fighter Wing, Naval Air Station, Joint Reserve Base, New Orleans, La., Swain says that his force has seen its share of deployments — supporting every conflict since Desert Storm/Desert Shield. The 926th FW was the first Reserve unit to deploy to Desert Shield/Desert Storm. They took more than 500 personnel consisting of the 706th Fighter Squadron, security forces, logistics, maintenance and medical squadrons.

"We treated it just like another deployment since we trained in Denmark every three years," said Swain. "We felt comfortable deploying together as a unit, and ready for the mission."

However, they would have never guessed what an impact they would make to the war.

"We had nine pilots with Viet Nam experience and flew the same amount of sorties as our active-duty counterparts with our 18 A-10s," he said with pride.

Their performance landed them the honor of being the most decorated fighter squadron, receiving multiple Silver Stars, Distinguished Flying Crosses and numerous Air Medals for multiple sorties.

Swain was credited with the first air-to-air kill, striking an Iraqi helicopter from the sky. "I call it an air-to-air victory."

Since Desert Storm, he has been called upon for speaking engagements across the country, in between his flights as a commercial airline pilot.

He not only reflects on his personal experiences, but also takes advantage of the opportunity to recruit for the Reserves.

"We may not have the best equipment, or look the best due to our age factor, because we are a much older force, but we are twice the citizen," said Swain. "We perform two jobs — military and civilian. And it's not for the money. It's because we love doing it."

With such experience in his more than 22 years, one would think that Swain has definitely made a place at the table for the Reserves.

Korean War Remembered

[Editor's note: As America recognizes its veterans (through the next two years) to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the Korean War, the Desert Airman is chronicling the significant events.] The following significant Air Force events occurred during this week in 1951:

Fifth Air Force moved its headquarters from Taegu back to Seoul.

DOD slows anthrax vaccination program again

The Department of Defense is further curtailing the Anthrax Immunization Program due to inadequate supplies of the vaccine, DOD officials said Monday.

Effective immediately, only servicemembers assigned to "special mission units" will receive the six-shot series.

The action is necessary because of delays in DOD receiving Food and Drug Administration-approved vaccine from Bioport Corp., the sole source of the vaccine.

"We have not yet been able to re-establish the supply of certified safe and effective vaccine to continue the program on the schedule," said Marine Maj. Gen. Randall West, deputy secretary of defense for chemical and biological protection.

The contractor -- Bioport, based in Lansing, Mich., is working to achieve FDA approval of their new expanded manufacturing facility as soon as possible, he said. There are currently about 30,000 doses of vaccine available for use now.

But until then, DOD will conserve the dwindling supply of approved vaccine. Only small special operations units, people working on research and some Congressionally-mandated studies will continue to receive the vaccine, West said.

This is the third slowdown for the immunization program.

In December 1999, DOD stopped inoculating servicemembers other than those deploying to Korea and the Persian Gulf. In November, DOD stopped inoculating servicemembers bound for Korea. Now servicemembers deploying to Southwest Asia will stop receiving the vaccine.

About 13,000 U.S. servicemembers are deployed to Southwest Asia. DOD and U.S. Central Command will have sufficient antibiotics on hand for post-exposure treatment in case of an attack.

Troops will have to rely on other forms of protection to an even greater degree, such as chemical and biological protection suits, detectors and intelligence collection and gathering, West said.

In his opinion, West said it is imperative that DOD resume the vaccination regime as soon as possible.

"The sooner we can provide this vaccination protection to the entire force, the better I'll sleep at night," he said. "The weaponized form of anthrax can be delivered by several munitions and is a very deadly threat. You can't see this, you can't smell it, you can't taste it, it's very difficult to detect and if you haven't been vaccinated, by the time you detect symptoms of anthrax, it's too late to save a person's life."

People who have begun the vaccination regime will not have to start over when the program resumes.

"Fortunately, even a couple of shots provide some resistance to anthrax," West said. "They'll be able to start the protocols where they left off."

"When we do have the vaccine replenished, the first place the vaccine will go is Southwest Asia," West said. (Courtesy Air Force Print News)

Hall of Fame in racquetball player's future

By Angie Erickson
355th Wing Public Affairs

When you think of the great rivals in a racquet sport, you may recall the unforgettable matches between John McEnroe and Jimmy Connors or perhaps when Martina Navratilova rushed the net against Chris Evert Lloyd.

They were world-class athletes who rivaled back and forth for multiple victories and made the sports world what it is today.

Today, the 162nd Fighter Wing has its own world-class athlete who too has his rivals.

Rob DeJesus of the 195th Aircraft Generation Squadron is known in the racquetball world as being a champion.

It all started when he was seven years old and his father, Ray, was serving in the Navy, stationed in Hawaii.

"My dad used to take me to the gym and that is where I became a court rat. Any time someone vacated, I would run on and hit the ball against the wall," he said with a smile.

Since his dad played on the Navy racquetball team, he passed off his talent to his son. He grew up perfecting his skill and winning tournaments along the way.

However, his racquetball fancy took a serious turn when he entered active duty in 1995.

While at Cannon Air Force

Rob DeJesus shows his racquetball form.

Base, N.M., he was selected to participate on the Air Force Racquetball Team.

It was during military competition that he met one of his favorite rivals – Jimmy Lowe.

The two battled it out to split three victories each in six years to win the Armed Forces Men's Open.

"Even though Lowe was a lot older than me, he was in excellent physical condition because of the Army's fitness program," said DeJesus.

He says he has enjoyed the camaraderie that has come along with competing.

He fondly speaks of a retired Army brigadier general who was just inducted into the United States Racquetball Hall of Fame.

"General Earl Acuff is incredible. He is in his eighties and he still plays. He's not only mentally strong, but physically," said DeJesus.

"He is a role model to me, because he is so enthusiastic. He always comes up to me and asks me when I am going to play, and gives me encouragement."

While one might say DeJesus is at the top of his game, he might argue. "I know that outsmarting the other person is strategy, but strategy is not necessarily what wins the game," he said.

"I have to condition myself, because there are a lot of great strategic players, and eventually it comes down to who is in the best physical condition."

Having just won second place at the U.S. Nationals, he has already set his sites on next year's very busy schedule, which will take him on an international tour.

Since his parents are from Puerto Rico, DeJesus represents the Puerto Rican Olympic Team.

He will participate for the Puerto Rico Olympic Team in the Pan American Games in the Dominican Republic, take the courts in the Central American Games in Puerto Rico as well as play in the Tournament of Americas in Bolivia.

He says he has many people to thank for his availability to play. "I am grateful for my chain of command, my civilian employer and to my wife, Rebecca, who is my greatest supporter," he said.

He also expressed gratitude toward childhood friend, Capt. Tom Fuhrmann who will soon be stationed at D-M.

"His family shared a love for racquetball, when we were growing up, and they helped me with my decision to join the Air Force," said DeJesus.

He says he looks forward to the two of them playing doubles at the National Doubles Tourney in October in Las Vegas, Nev.

"Having him at D-M will only motivate me more."

While racquetball has not received the same notoriety as tennis, one thing is for sure, DeJesus is not only making a name for himself but he is bringing honor to his service and securing a place in the Racquetball Hall of Fame.
